

Music Conservatory Policies

A student's enjoyment and success in their instrument of choice is directly related to how much practice they can commit outside of their lessons. If parents are finding it a challenge to inspire their children to practice, please talk to your instructor for ideas to motivate students to practice. Our goal is to equip each of our students with a talent in music that will last a lifetime, bringing joy to friends and family.

The Music Conservatory is a program of The Culture House, and all students and families must register as students in our parent portal prior to beginning lessons and pay the annual family registration fee.

Music students will make appointments for private lessons directly with their teacher.

Music teachers should be paid directly for their lessons.

Music instructors might have their own policies, and The Culture House requests that families please abide by these.